WHY YOU SHOULD ATTEND

In today's landscape, AI is no longer just a topic for IT specialists. It impacts every corner of an organisation; from handling customer data to protecting brand reputation. This training program is designed to give participants a practical toolkit to handle the real-world challenges that come with modern technology, such as deepfakes, bias, and unintended system misuse. Whether you are building the tools, managing the teams, or overseeing the risks, participants will walk away with the confidence to make informed decisions that prioritise both safety and innovation of their organisation.

This two-day training will ensure participants are able to navigate the complex trade-offs between system usability and essential control. By mastering these skills, organisations are protected from reputational damage, legal risks, and the technical debt of retrofitting safety into a failed system.
