WHY YOU SHOULD ATTEND

Financial Planning & Analysis (FP&A) plays a crucial role in helping organisations navigate complex and rapidly changing business environments. The finance function today goes beyond preparing historical reports. It is expected to provide forward-looking analysis that supports better management decisions. Companies increasingly rely on FP&A professionals to interpret financial data, forecast future performance, identify potential risks, and guide leadership toward sustainable growth.

This two-day program introduces participants to practical FP&A techniques used by finance teams worldwide. Participants will gain hands-on understanding of budgeting, forecasting, performance analysis, financial modelling, and scenario planning.

The program focuses on translating financial information into insightful analysis that supports strategic decision-making.
